SOCIALIST CLUB CHALLENGES EXponents OF GRAFT AND CORRUPTION

"To the exponents of graft and corruption."

This was the salutation of a challenge for debate directed Monday by the Socialists of the school to both the Wilson and Hughes clubs.

The defy which came unexpectedly to these clubs in noon session set yesterday afternoon as the time of the debate and invited the presidents, Ed Seay and Herbert Scheuner to divide time with Marion Lehman, president of the Socialist club on the national issues.

Declaring that a letter addressed to the "exponents of graft and corruption" was not addressed to them the challenge was rejected with a thud by both the Democrats and Republicans.

Yesterday's dispute is but the forerunner of the many hot political affairs which are assured for the next few weeks. Plans are rife for stump speeches, debates, rallies and everything that goes to make a live campaign. The "Wilson for President" club elected the following officers at yesterday's noon meeting: vice president, Kenneth Beldin, secretary, Robert Carmack, treasurer, Frank Balthis.

"Stylus" plans are being considered by the Senior class. A nominating committee has been working on a list of nominees for the staff, and the class will soon hold an election to determine who will edit the school annual this year. It is intended to make the '17 Stylus the best in the history of the school, and students are urged to begin thinking up story plots, saving jokes and taking snapshots in order to win the prizes to be offered.

Margaret Lusby and Geneva Lang presented a most interesting original dialogue Monday in the Junior English class. Clever and catchy lines featured the conversation and the class was kept in laughter from start to finish.

The coming election formed the center of interest in an imaginary interview by a newspaper reporter with Secretary to the President Tummulty in Miss Terry's oral English class yesterday. William Gower, reporter for the New York World gained for the readers of his journal much valuable information from Kenneth Beldin, President Wilson's private secretary. Several Republicans in the class were shaken in their stand on the presidential question.

RECEPTION TO TEACHERS

The Parent-Teacher associations of the city will entertain the teachers of all the city schools in the High school auditorium Tuesday night. This is a general affair and everybody is invited. A pleasing program has been prepared. Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, president of the Parent-Teachers federation will act as chairman of the reception committee and will be assisted by Mrs. Ella W. Richardson, president of the Pacific Avenue association, Mrs. Meeker, of the Intermediate; Mrs. Florence Kurtz of Central avenue; Mrs. M. E. Plasterer, of Doran street; Mrs. A. M. Beamon, of Colorado boulevard; Mrs. A. C. Anderson of Broadway; Mrs. John Robert White of Columbus avenue and A. L. Ferguson of the High school. The courtesy committee, consisting of Mrs. Chase, Mrs. McCray, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Wetman, Mrs. Farries, Mrs. Woodward, Mrs. Findley, Mrs. Addison, Mrs. McPherson, will be on duty. The High school orchestra will give a program.

CASA VERDUGO CHURCH WORK

Casa Verdugo M. E. church held its rally day on Sunday. The Sunday school showed a gratifying increase in membership, ninety-five being in attendance. George W. Tyrell, superintendent of the school, presided. The Sunday school services which were characterized by great enthusiasm were merged with the regular services and when the regular hour of worship arrived the church was crowded to the door and every foot of standing room was occupied. Mrs. R. D. Jones and J. B. Clark sang several sacred solos. The teachers and others gave an interesting symposium on "Pioneers of Methodism" and the audience learned about Barbara Heck and Philip Embury, who founded a Methodist mission in New York in 1776 and about the work of Robert Strawbridge, who it is claimed, started Methodist worship in Maryland in 1764.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair to night and Wednesday; foggy along the coast; westerly winds.

PROF. W. D. ROOT HEARS FROM HIS FRIEND, AN ENGLISH CHAPLAIN AT THE FRONT

In a recent communication to The Glendale Evening News Professor W. D. Root of Glendale High school communicated an interesting letter from his friend the Rev. S. Hankin Hardy, who is a Wesleyan chaplain with the West Riding (Yorkshire) Division of Territorials, and went out with the British Expeditionary force that attempted to force its way to Constantinople. In the communication published Chaplain Hardy told of his wife's work as a nurse in charge of the Serbian hospital at Nish and of the hardships she had encountered there.

Chaplain Hardy himself never heard from his wife during a considerable part of the time that he was serving with the expeditionary force. Neither of them knew where the other was but both went on with their Christian work tending the wounded and caring for the dying.

According to Chaplain Hardy's account the hardships endured by the British force, which consisted of a mixed Australian, New Zealand and British territorial troops, were very severe. There was no water on the Gallipoli peninsula and the troops suffered much from thirst. Afterward when pipes were laid from the ships through which water was pumped to the trenches, the thirsty soldiers would cut them at different points to obtain water. Fever was quite prevalent and there was a high death rate.

"I landed with the troops at Cape Hellas," writes Chaplain Norton, "in the first onset on April 25, 1915, and for about seven months endured such hardships as I could never have believed possible. All that time we were under shell fire night and day and had many near escapes from death."

"Eventually I was carried off on a stretcher and put aboard a hospital ship very sick, but was soon restored. I landed in England just about a week before my wife came out from her privations in the retreat. For three months owing to a dislocation of postal service we had not heard from each other and one did not know where the other was."

"Two days before Christmas, 1915, we met in the most romantic and providential way, after twelve months' separation."

"After two months I was off on service again. This time I went to Egypt but after two months came to France where I have been ever since. This is a strange life but in the stress of conflicting principles it is a great privilege as well as a duty to do all we can for the cause that we believe is of God. Our compensations will come when victory has been won and a lasting peace secured."

This letter was written September 12, 1916. It was opened by the British field censor and bears his stamp "Passed Field Censor" with a royal crown in the center of the stamp, and below the stamp is written "Censored by R. E. Shaw." The examination of the censor accounts for the lack of detail in the letter and it is interesting to note that the censor did not blot out a single word. In other letters received in Glendale from English friends, by different parties allusions to operations of Zepelins and to actions at the front have been stamped out.

SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS

Taking advantage of the hunting season a number of Glendale experts with the gun sought the game country toward the week end. Among them were Roy Wright, Alfred Kendall and Earl Kendall, who motored to Perris Saturday and in that wild country were successful in bagging a large number of rabbits.

Chester Killgore, Norman Otis and Alfred Land sought the recesses of Elizabeth lake and waged war on the ducks. They found that ducks of all kinds were plentiful. In all they secured twenty-three chiefly consisting of sprig and widgeon, with a few wiretails. After their experience with the ducks they went on to Antelope valley, where they found the rabbits so plentiful that they secured fifty between them.

Hugh Cornwell, Roy Hinchcliffe and F. W. Kenney brought home sixty-six ducks from Elizabeth lake.

MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION

The 'Ministers' Association of Glendale will meet Wednesday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce at 1:30 o'clock. The object of the meeting is to consult with regard to attending the great dry parade that is to be held in Los Angeles, November 14.

NO SUPPLIES PERMITTED TO POLAND

GERMANS REFUSE TO ALLOW FOOD TO ENTER RUSSIAN POLAND EXCEPT ON THEIR OWN CONDITIONS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 17.—President Wilson, who has been using every means in his power to induce the contending Allies and Central Powers to agree on some plan for the relief of the starving millions in Russian Poland, which is now in the hands of the Germans, said today that his efforts had failed. The Germans will not permit the distribution of food among the Poles except on condition that they handle the supplies. The British, who have been doing the only relief work there say that the Germans use the supplies for their own soldiers. They ask that some unbiased power handle the distribution.

FRENCH CAPTURE MORE VILLAGES

GEN. FOCH'S MEN THROW OUT GERMANS IN DESPERATE ALL-NIGHT BATTLE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, Oct. 17.—In a desperate all-night battle the French troops of Gen. Foch wrested the stronghold of Sailly-Sallisel from the Germans last night. The church, the castle, the houses on the western side of the road were captured after hand-to-hand fighting of the fiercest description. The German counter attacks were a complete failure and the French having consolidated their positions advanced and took several other points northeast of Comblès. The official account states that heavy losses were inflicted on the German reserves by aeroplanes with machine guns.

GERMANY ADVANCES VAST ARMY ON AN EIGHTY MILE FRONT IN NORTHWESTERN ROUMANIA

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, commander-in-chief of the German armies, under the Kaiser, has begun his grand offensive in the east. This widely advertised movement is well under way. The Teuton attack is being made on an eighty-mile front, on the Northwestern Roumanian frontier. The Roumanians claim to have repulsed all attacks up to this point. The Germans say that the attacks are succeeding.

ALLIES FEAR RIOTING IN CAPITAL OF GREECE

BRITISH AND FRENCH LAND MARINES TO PROTECT CITY FROM THE GATHERING MOB

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ATHENS, Oct. 17.—By their own recognition of the revolutionary government in Greece the Allies have virtually thrown over King Constantine and his cabinet. The king's persistent refusal to enter the war on the side of the Allies is the reason for this act. The revolutionary government is headed by ex-Premier Venizelos. Venizelos has gathered an army which will be sent to aid the Allies at the front. Meanwhile fearing the mob which is gathering in the streets of this city the British and French are landing marines at the Piraeus, the harbor of Athens. These troops will guard life and property in the city.

ROOSEVELT TO CAMPAIGN IN WESTERN STATES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Republican right wing under Roosevelt is about to swing into action. It has been arranged that "the colonel" will begin a campaign in the western states. He will speak in five states including Arizona and New Mexico.

GERMANS RETAKE TRENCHES ON SOMME

REPEATED ASSAULTS ON BRITISH GAINS RESULT IN TEUTON OCCUPATION OF SOME LOST GROUND

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Fighting of the most desperate character went on all last night in the neighborhood of the Schwaben fort, recently captured by the British. The German staff attaches immense importance to this lost position and launched attack after attack on the British. After desperate fighting the British still held the fort; but the Germans had managed to capture some trenches. The British extended their front north of Ancre and consolidated the broadening wedge they are driving into the German lines.

PARKERET PARAGRAPHS

(By Samuel Parker)

Carefully prepared tables established the fact that practically all the victims of sun stroke occurring in Chicago the past season were addicted to drink. Irregular modes of living, indulgence in all sorts of excess, made them easy victims, while men of temperate habits, avoiding strong drink, in equal conditions of exposure, felt the force of the scorching sun, but escaped fatalities.

We laugh at the boy who rode to the mill with the grain in one end of the bag and a stone in the other instead of dividing the grain, and justified the act because "grandfather did it that way"—and yet that boy was wise compared to some smart and even professedly religious people who seize on a custom of which they know and care nothing, (Hallowe'en) to perpetrate all sorts of mischievous pranks, that sometimes have endings involving lifetimes of sorrow.

"And we'll all feel gay, when Johnny comes marching home." This was our song over fifty years ago, and as we have two regiments of brave boys returning from service on the Mexican border, the Journal of Commerce in Los Angeles, has voted to greet them with a reception dance. The mothers of these boys have asked for a change in the program, suggesting a dinner instead of a dance, go for the stomach rather than the heels of footsore men. We second the motion. The limber legged brigade easily succeeds in getting frontage beyond its deserts. Scarce anything escapes now but a funeral and that is in great danger.

Booth (not the assassin) the actor was once on a time dining with several clergymen, expression and delivery being considered, when the actor was requested to recite the Lord's Prayer. He arose, assumed an attitude of entreaty, his cheeks became pale, his lips quivered, his form was surcharged with emotion. His tones were shaped to the sentiment of each part and kingdom, power and glory, got its visional setting. When he finished his audience was seemingly overcome with emotion, several being in tears.

The booze business gives least employment to labor of any other and hence its "crocodile tears" lest labor be hurt can be properly estimated. The greatest destroyer of labor is King Booze. He seizes the skilled mechanic and puts him of business. He grabs the common laborer and paralyzes his stout arm. He seizes the mechanic and soon makes him jobless. We may have been responsible for the misery of the wet. Let us try the dry.

"Oh, Mrs. Wood, I am really glad to see you, I only ran in a moment to bring you these large specimens of forest leaves, such bright foliage, I knew you would admire them. To hold them in shape just put them between the leaves of some large book for a time." (Johnnie) "Ma, you can put 'em in the Bible."

"Nay, nay, no Hallowe'en for me, I shudder at the thought, Could you but know the misery That foolish custom brought Into my life, you ne'er again Would of a party be To fill a happy heart with pain, A life with misery, Alas what havoc oft is done, That thoughtless people may have 'Fun'."

No brighter child than Isabel Could anywhere be found, It breaks my mother's heart to tell How, when they came around In masquerade, that fearful night For jollity and fun, Her brightness fled in awful fright, Her mind since then undone, Look on her and you will agree, This is no "merry time" for me."

The wets insist that beer is a food and used at meals assists digestion. The New York Bureau of Municipal Research, declares that beer contains just one-tenth the caloric food that oatmeal possesses, and to secure the food value of the oatmeal, the boozer must drink a dollar's worth of beer. This, says the Kansas City Times, would leave the drinker in no shape to go out and earn the dollar. The same New York authority declares that the popular idea that drink stimulates is false. The only thing stimulated is the booze trade.

How really funny some very common things are, how nutty and formal social reportings. Fifty ladies (Continued on Page 2)

COMPENSATION FOR WAR WASTE

While there is not the slightest doubt concerning the waste of material wealth caused by war there is also a compensation for that waste in the war-increased economics. The destruction of property is greatly exaggerated and the labor-saving machinery in use today makes it possible to accumulate wealth almost as rapidly as it can be destroyed, either by men or by machinery. Men are far more at home in the work of construction than in the work of destruction as practised in war. All the time men are practising construction and are efficient in that point. Whereas they go to war only once in a generation and the mechanical part of armies is operated with an inefficiency that would never be tolerated in any big industry.

It can also be seen that the war has compelled the mobilization of the world's gold reserves in banks and deposit institutions. This permanently enlarges the basis on which a correspondingly enlarged superstructure of credit can be imposed.

Everywhere throughout Europe the people have been willing to accept a credit currency in place of gold. In most of the European countries the national obligations are redeemable in gold at their face value. No one however seeks redemption because they have supreme faith in their existing governments. This is a very real and remarkable growth of credit. It is ultimately going to have a very significant effect. After the war is over there will be even less reason than there is now to withdraw the gold that has found its way into the banks and it will probably stay there. The government loans are secured by taxation and are replaced by the commercial credits required in the activities of peace so the accumulated gold will still be available as a reserve for the deposits and loans which once increased by the financial exigencies of war are rarely much decreased thereafter.

On all hands one hears prophecies, that after the war, rates of interest will be greatly advanced everywhere. Study of the conditions that prevailed after the wars of the past show that there is not the slightest reason to anticipate such a result. Take the Civil War. In that struggle $5,000,000,000 worth of capital was destroyed by both sides, yet the average rate of discount of the Bank of England fell immediately after the war was over from 7.41 per cent to 2.10 per cent. The Franco-Prussian war caused a destruction of wealth to the extent of $4,000,000,000 yet it was followed by a fall in the average discount rate of from 4.10 per cent in 1872 and 4.76 in 1873 to 2.61 per cent in 1876. Interest rates in New York in 1876 averaged only 5 per cent as compared with 7.63 per cent in 1872. Five per cent in 1876 was as cheap as 3 per cent is now.

The Spanish-American war of 1898 and the Boer war of 1899 were followed by the greatest trade expansion ever known to the United States and Europe and wealth was accumulated with a rapidity that engendered a period of advancing prices and speculation that lasted until 1906.

It seems then to be true that we are in the habit just now of mournfully and unjustifiably exaggerating the waste of war and underestimating the value of the economies that war induces. We are therefore forced to conclude that war increases the confidence of men in each other and their institutions which we call credit and so tends to diminish the charge exacted for its use.

THE OPEN DOOR IN CHINA

Secretary John Hay, one of the most enlightened heads of the United States Department of State this country has known adopted the phrase "the open door" as a definition of the United States policy in China. He announced this policy to the powers in 1900. That was at the time when there was infinite danger of a partition of China by the powers on account of the Boxer uprising. The greedy powers, some of them with their pockets bulging with the loot of the Chinese Summer palace, were very loath to give up their opportunity but they held the United States government in high respect, especially on account of its refusal to keep the compensation exacted from China, and they yielded the point and kept their hands off.

This left to the United States an equal opportunity in trade with the opportunities enjoyed by all other nations. That has really been the only policy that this government has enunciated with regard to China at any time during the past sixteen years. At various times during those years this policy has been written into treaties between the United States and Japan.

During the period mentioned the United States has kept the door open but American merchants and financiers took little advantage of the opportunity. In 1909 however, a syndicate of representative American banks went into the Chinese provinces and backed by the United States support and countenance managed to secure equal participation in the railroad exploitation of Central China and the reorganization of the currency of the Chinese empire.

That was a notable victory for American finance but it was a short-lived triumph, for the present government, feeling that the United States was too much in evidence in the matter withdrew its support of the syndicate and the banks were compelled to withdraw from China.

When the United States was thus abandoning its interests in the Celestial Kingdom, Japan was wide-awake to the opportunity there. Japan has a far greater hold on China than the United States could expect to have. Its clever agents speak and write the Chinese language with great fluency and readiness. They are Orientals themselves and understand the Oriental mind and ways. They have not been long in securing a hold on China and in developing a policy there that is likely to shut out not only the United States but also to secure for Japan many valuable rights which will make it one of the leading countries of the world. The war in Europe has enabled Japan to strengthen its hold on China in a most extraordinary manner. There has been no check on its ambitious schemes. The United States has stood aside and the wise statesmen of Japan have organized a plan to secure the fruitage this country refuses. Shantung, the province captured from Germany, is to become Japanese; so are South Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia. The wealth of the Yangtse valley is to be Japan's. That is one of the richest mineral receiving were "charming." Fifty paragraphs relating to young ladies had the prefix "pretty" to their names. Fifty lunches were "elegant." Fifty audiences were "delighted" listening to instrumental solos. In fifty instances both mother and child were "doing well." Fifty parlors were "handsomely decorated." Fifty brides each was "one of our most charming." Fifty solos were sung or played in her "usual elegant manner." (Count the next fifty for yourself.)

There has been a recasting of church rituals in several church bodies this present year and the text greatly improved as a result. From the Methodist discipline disappears that dead letter word "obey" in the marriage ceremony, which always was used with a "string to it," in this free country. It got in hundreds of years ago, and in a country (England) just now being emancipated from the idea, that a woman was of any use in the world but "to wash a man's victuals and cook his clothes."

The principal business of the booze boosters is to perpetuate the drink habit by increasing the number of those that can be induced to drink, from the rank of non-drinkers among young men. Their chief argument is that the use of the milder drinks, wine and beer are not at all harmful but really helpful in banishing from the stronger alcoholic drinks. False theory. The use of these mild intoxicants only serve to pave the way for something stronger.

If the season of ritualistic revision came to a close with the hoary misfit "ring" marriage service not changed, or abolished, the churches thus neglectful should be recommended to make the change. "With this ring I thee wed and with all my worldly goods, I thee endow" is a joke, when he borrowed the money to buy the cheap ring used and "worldly goods" were nil. On top of this joke, doing it in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, seems little short of sacrilegious.

Our venerable, patriotic veteran, Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times, so powerful a factor for good, as witness his continuous fight for the open shop, is equally a power, when wrong, and that is too often. Just now his attitude on the dry question, forceful and able as they are, are neutralized in such a way that they give aid and comfort to the enemy and ornament all too often the wet columns and speeches.

districts in the world. Japan will control China's war munitions, probably reorganize and command her army as well as her political and financial affairs.

It looks very much as if Japan had set up a doctrine that closes the "open door" against the United States and Europe and that if this or any other country desires to reopen that door it will have to fight with the Japanese for its possession.

FEDERATION MEETING

The Parent-Teacher Federation met at the Third street school, Monday, October 16. There was a good attendance and after a considerable volume of business had been transacted, Principal George U. Moyses of Glendale Union High school and Principal Richardson D. White of the city schools each gave a short talk. Professor Moyses spoke of the parents getting into close touch with the teachers in all school affairs and urged all to visit the schools.

Mrs. Burr, our delegate to the district conference read the following paper:

First district conference on legislation was held at the Times building on Tuesday October 3. Mrs. Gallantyne, president of first district presided. Mark Keppel, county superintendent of schools was the first speaker and talked on the need of school legislation. The subject of school legislation cannot be studied too early. School elections are the most important of all, are poorly organized. Too much money is spent for supplies for the schools. There should be a county purchasing agent to get bids on all supplies and this would save the public schools and tax payers a vast amount of money. There should be an increase in the county tax so that the poor districts can get efficient teachers. Why the state has to spend so much on crime is because we have not spent enough on education the last fifty years. Should our teachers after they have taught a reasonable time be put on tenure? Some of our teachers who have proven themselves to be ideal in character and most efficient as teachers have been thrown out by newly elected school boards. We must deal right with the teacher. We except the teacher to train our children in morals. How can she teach the child morals when away down in her heart is the ranking of some wrong.

Mrs. Works spoke on visual education. Ninety per cent. of the people are visual minded and this is why the picture shows are such a success. The picture machine should be used in the schools. They are of great educational value and give the best training in the shortest time. The difficulty of securing these picture machines in the schools have not been in earnest, not directed in the right way. The influence of the educational film in the schools would develop in the child a desire for good pictures and he would not care for the poor film.

Mrs. Harry Trowbridge, chairman of the juvenile probation said: Consider every child is your child. Stop pointing your finger at the child who has come into the arms of the court. The child of today is placed under so much restriction, he has one law after another to face on every turn. Most of these children are here for lack of love and the right environment. You mothers should respond to this work. Put yourself in the place of the mother who has been lost.

Miss Dorothy Willis told us about the Moron colony. Moron, a Greek word, meaning fool. These Morons should be placed in an institution by themselves. A Moron is always a Moron and there is no help for him. He cannot be taught to think, but he can be taught to do all kinds of work mechanically. She told of the Moron colony in England which is a success, where these people are taught to work under the direction of efficient teachers.

Mrs. Campbell, our assistant district attorney discussed our community property law. This doctrine was introduced from the French and Spanish law, into some of the southern states and western states, including Louisiana, Washington, Texas and California, but is generally regulated and somewhat modified by statutes.

In California community property is acquired through marriage. Half of the community property goes to the wife on the death of the husband and if there are no children, the other half goes to relatives. The husband can will his wife all the property and this is what you should have him do.

There are three things to be revised in community property law. What can the wife do to hold her half if the husband makes a mad move. She cannot hold her half. She should have equal control with her husband over community property.

Shall the survivor take all the property? If there are no children it should go to the survivor. This is only a fair adjustment of the law.

In the afternoon the seven amendments that are to appear on the ballot for November 7 were taken up.

O. P. Clark talked on amendments 1 and 2 on the liquor question. Women have been the sufferers for all time from drink. Perhaps you are not aware of the fact that drink is attacking the ranks of our women. Prohibition should be handled as a moral question, leave politics and religion out of it and handle it by itself. Work for the party that will endorse it on the federal books. Some are afraid it will affect the prosperity of the state. There never was a reform that did not have its disadvantages. Some of the wine industries have signs over their places of business saying "Save us, if the state goes dry it means destruction and etc." It is the wholesale liquor dealer that is back of this. Out of the large vineyard the owner first gets the table-grape, grape juice and raisins. The culls are sent to the winery, the culls go into the culls, these culls bring us the degenerates. These people are preparing for prohibition now. One large winery in San Francisco is so arranged that it can be turned into an ice plant in two days. They are going to take care of themselves.

One business is going to be lessened and that is the insane asylum, another the juvenile court. Another business it will hurt and that is the house of prostitution. Thirty-three per cent. of the adults commit crime under the influence of drink.

Ninety per cent. of the accidents between Los Angeles and the beach are caused from drink.

Some say you are taking away the personal liberty of man. Aren't we hedged about every day by law and order. It is something to be on the right side and let us be on the right side when the books are balanced.

Mr. Kemp, employed in the public works of Los Angeles, told us about propositions 3 and 7 relating to the highway act. Proposition 3 asks for additional bonds of 15 million dollars to complete the construction of the state highway. The bond of 18 millions that we voted for in 1909 has been expended and the highway is not complete. They have built pieces of the road and the idea is to connect the good roads.

Los Angeles with 500 miles of good roads now leads not only in all the other counties but leads in the United States as well in its mileage of paved roadway. Proposition 7, that the highway act be amended that the state bear the expenses in places where people cannot live as the large marshy places found in Yolo county. It would not be right to tax the people in these counties for such places. If these good roads are completed California will stand first in the world in its touring system.

Proposition No. 5, single tax system: Mrs. Robinson of Glendale took up the proposition. Do you think that California lands should be accessible to all people? People who have large estates cuts off the county highway, hold their land for speculation in the future. The tax on this land is very low. How will you make these people let go? A higher tax on their land will make them come under. They will not want to pay the higher tax and the land will be sold in small parcels. If all the land was thrown open it would abolish poverty. We have had the same system of taxation for the last 5000 years from the time of the ox-cart. Everything else has been improved upon why not improve our system of land taxation. Amendment No. 4 has to do with the primary law and was explained by Mrs. Howard Trotter. We don't want to get along without our primary elections. We want to say as men and women who are to represent us as officers. The primary law gives the people a chance to vote for the right individual.

Mrs. Trotter also told us about amendment No. 6. It deals with the ineligibility of our senators or representatives that we send to Washington. If the executive head finds these men efficient and they are put on commission to work for the interests of our state, it would not be fair to these men to put other men in their places and besides men that we know nothing about. Our men are honest. We can trust them.

OUTLOOK FOR ALASKA

As Alaska has the same latitude as Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland, and similar climatic conditions, the same development may be expected as that witnessed in the Scandinavian countries. The department of agriculture has classified 60,000 square miles in Alaska as suitable for cultivation, with an additional 100,000 suitable for hay and grazing, and still another 100,000 for reindeer ranges.

The four Scandinavian countries have 12,000,000 population, and 14,000,000 head of live stock. Applying the same ratio to the available land of Alaska, it would give her a population of 30,000,000, with 50,000,000 head of live stock. The present population of Alaska, according to the last census, is 65,000 including natives. It is predicted that Alaska's growth in population and commerce will be steady.

The country has 4000 miles of navigable rivers. The government has appropriated $335,000,000 for railway construction now in active process which will connect the commerce of these rivers and render accessible the great coal fields, mines, forests and agricultural lands.

THRIFT IN SWITZERLAND

In Switzerland, the people exercise greater forethought in the matter of saving money than in most countries, for 554 out of every 1000 inhabitants have savings accounts. In the United States only ninety-nine out of every 1000 or less than ten per cent, have thus provided for the future. The average savings per person in Switzerland are $47.03 and in the United States $4.84.

A little girl in Brooklyn, the great grand-daughter of a wealthy New Yorker, is being taught thrift automatically. This man in his will provided that a large part of his estate should go to his grand daughter, provided she saved $500 in five years. Every boy and girl in the country, some contend, should be likewise taught—that "to save a penny is to earn a penny," in order that they may know the real value of money and its purchasing power.

WAR WAGES IN GERMANY

Feeling that the stories about the enormous wage increases being enjoyed by German workers in general since the outbreak of the war were not well founded, and were designed to lull the public into the belief that the great advance in the cost of living was about equaled by the advance in earnings, the Board of Management of the German Transportation Workers' Union in Dresden has compiled data showing the rate of wages paid to employees of commercial and transportation industries in July, 1914, and in March, 1916.

These figures show that the average wage of the male employees had risen only about 11 per cent., or from 27.66 marks to 30.71 marks per week, (mark equals 23.8 cents at the normal rate of exchange,) while the weekly pay of the women workers had advanced from 16.03 to 17.90 marks, about 1.66 per cent.

CARE OF THE BODY

O. H. JONES URGES WORLD TO BUILD UP CLEAN BODIES AS WELL AS SOULS

This is the natural course of man's life, which should continue, uninterrupted, until he has fully matured for the natural harvest season, which was close to a thousand years in the beginning, when he should gradually pass—not into death—into his rest—the final sleep on earth, to awaken in the spring time of the new life.

There is a state called death; and a state called sleep; which is illustrated by the dead tree, and the tree in the state of rest.

"Our friend Lazarus sleepeth, but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep." "And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept." "Concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope." Read the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians, and the fourth chapter of the First Thessalonians.

The renewal of life in the vegetable kingdom in the spring time is symbolic of a general resurrection of all life. All nature teaches it. Christ taught it, and exemplified it. St. Paul taught, and that was St. Paul's chief hope. "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead."

But what is going to be raised? What is it that the last trump is going to awaken? It must surely be something which is asleep. It must be something that has life, although that life is quiescent.

When nature sleeps and when the animal sleeps, the life is still there; and is ready to resume its activities as soon as it is awakened.

The record states that at the death of the body, the breath or spirit returns to the giver. Theology teaches us that the soul or spirit goes to paradise or heaven, at the death of the body. We know that the body, when it is laid away in the grave, decays and returns to the dust from which it is taken. What, then, is there left to answer the resurrection summons, when the call is made to come forth? What created the body? What vitalized and animated it when it was living? Why, life, of course! Physical, human, animal life! The physical, vital life principle which animates all nature.

That is what sleeps! That is what will respond to the resurrection summons when the reverberations of the last trumpet shall shatter the rocks and open up the graves of those who are asleep. The physical life which has not been destroyed. Those who are asleep will hear that summons and come forth. But how about those who are dead, whose life has been destroyed? Those who have not been permitted to, and those who have not of their own accord, followed the regular course of nature and attained unto the regular harvest season; and the regular rest from their labors, and the sleep which naturally follows?

All nature teaches us that, when a thing dies, or the life is destroyed, that there is no revival for that particular thing which has died. And the lesson which the resurrection teaches us, is the fact, of the awakening of existing life. Therefore if we expect to have a part in that grand awakening on the resurrection morning, we must be very careful in selecting the seed which we are going to sow and be sure that the germ is fresh and vital and not withered and worm-eaten.

Brother! Sister! What preparations are you making for that glorious event? Are you preparing a physical existence here that will pass through the general course of nature and come up to the harvest season fully matured for the grand transformation scene; and then pass to your final reward, fully qualified for a place with those who will form a part of that glorious company which will respond to that awakening call, or are you in the class, or preparing yourself for the class, represented by the dead tree.

Parents, what kind of bodies, minds and lives are you preparing here for your children to equip them for the final harvest time? Remember that you are responsible for their physical lives and bodies. They will have then only just what you are preparing for them now. What shall the harvest be.

Our standing at the harvest time and our standing in the revival season in the spring time will depend upon the quality of the seed we sow now in this life. Will it take us through the winter season, or will it rot and perish in the ground because of loss of vitality? As ye sow, so shall ye reap. We cannot expect to receive anything better than what we sow in the spring time. We cannot expect a good crop from poor seed.

If we are to have a part with the balance of nature, in that general resurrection, when all the works of nature shall be renewed, we must bring ourselves into harmony with nature, and we must have something in the sleeping room to be awakened. The most essential thing for us to have at that time, will be a perfect physical life which has been lived in harmony with nature that can be awakened and come forth when the resurrection call shall be resounded throughout the earth, and the graves shall give up their sleeping hosts.

We have a good example of this following the crucifixion. "And the graves were opened, and many bodies of the saints which slept arose and came out of the graves."

So you see we must have something in the grave which is sleeping, and something that can be called out of that sleep. Something that has life, life which is dormant.

The spirit must have a tenement to enter again, and the body must have breath. But the foundation of all, and for all, will be the resurrected physical life of man which has been perfected and as it now exists on this earth. And that life will be transformed to accommodate it to its new environment when this old earth shall have been renovated and made new.

If I were an ordained preacher, and had a license to preach, I might give you some theoretical instructions about what is necessary for you to do, to fit you for another and a better life. But as there are thousands of good men who have been especially trained to instruct in the duties, which will enable one to walk the golden streets; and as I do not wish to encroach upon what is within the jurisdiction of others, I will confine myself strictly to the things which belong to this mundane sphere and discourse on the preparations necessary to prepare one to live this physical, animal life, and bring oneself into harmony with nature, and in that way prepare for the rest after the harvest season is passed. I hope that I may not be so lonesome as Elijah thought he was going to be. All nature teaches us that there can be no resurrection where there is no life. Man cannot segregate himself from nature, either dead or alive. As a safe proposition it is always safest to be on the safe side. So if you wish to be one of the plants which buds in time and which will bloom in eternity it stands you in hand to prepare a physical body and a physical life here and now, that will be in harmony with nature, so that it will pass naturally through the harvest season to its final rest and sleep in the grave. For it is only through the portal of the grave that you can hope to come forth to the spring time renewal of life. Don't take chances, nature is just, but never relents and never forgets.

It matters not what we have been taught or what we may think ought to be. We cannot get away from the fact that we are a part of nature in our physical being and are governed by the same universal laws that govern all nature. It is safest for us to be guided by analogy and apply to ourselves the lesson which all things in nature teach.

We should be very careful to learn what nature teaches and be governed accordingly. Nature teaches us that if we obey its laws we shall live this physical life free from sickness and disease; that there will be no death from disease, that we may run our full course in nature without hindrance, that in the harvest time of life we shall be garnered fully matured and pass to our rest in the grave, and that in the springtime, when the call goes forth for nature to awaken from its long sleep, we shall come forth clothed with all of the beauty and splendor which will adorn that glorious spring time renewal of life.

But I think that you will find it absolutely necessary to have a resurrection of your physical life, a life that has been developed in a clean physical body, if you wish to continue your present existence in that new creation. So don't neglect to bring yourself into harmony with nature and live the perfect physical, animal life of man here and you will stand a better chance for the hereafter.

A short time ago we were treated to an able lecture upon the "Power of Faith" by the Rev. H. V. Adams at the First M. E. church, a synopsis of which was printed in The News at that time.

The subject of the lecture was: "What is the need of the hour?" After stating a number of important world matters which are claimed by the adherents to be the supreme need of the hour the speaker read a clipping from the Wall Street Journal, a definition of what is claimed to be the supreme need of the hour, the definition "The need of the hour is a revival of faith, a return to the religion of our fathers, a morality based on the Bible."

There can be no question about the need of a morality based on the Bible. But there are several important questions which arise here, and need to be carefully considered. In what particulars do we need a revival of faith? What particular brand of faith do we need a revival of? What was the religion of the fathers? To which of the fathers do we need to return for an example of faith and religion. What was the faith and religious convictions of the fathers from the time of Constantine, in the third century, to the time of the landing of the pilgrim fathers at Plymouth Rock?

Has not three-fourths of the world today returned to that dark period of bigotry, superstition and savagery? Are not we of this enlightened land aiding and abetting them to the best of our ability? Do we need any more of a revival of the faith and religion of that period than what we already possess?

The pilgrim fathers fled from the bigotry and persecution of the old world, that they might enjoy religious freedom in the new world. What was their faith and religious practice? Why they became greater religious bigots and persecutors than those from whom they fled, and engaged in the pleasant pastime of burning their fellows who did not agree with them, at the stake as witches. We have a plenty of bigots and cranks who would do the same thing now if they had the power to do so. Surely we do not want to return to the belief and practise of those times!

We will come down to a later period which is within the memory of some of the fathers now living. It is not many years since the ministers of the gospel were preaching and the fathers and the mothers also were believing in the doctrine of infant damnation, and that hell was paved with the skulls of infants. Do we want a revival of the faith, or do we want to return to the religion of the fathers, of that period.

Then there was the faith in and the religion of human chattel slavery and the time when ministers of the gospel run distilleries and made wine and brandy and they all took a little for the stomach's sake.

All of this faith and religion of the fathers was based on the teachings of the Bible as they interpreted it. Have we not got sufficient faith to do all these things? Have we anything but faith?

Although we do not believe in the hell part of the theory we can beat that by a good large majority for we are not literally paving the earth with the bones of infants and the youths, and if there is any shortage of material, we get up a world war to supply the deficiency. Of course we have faith.

If we want to remove a mountain or change the course of a mountain torrent, we construct a steamshovel and build a railroad and haul the mountain to some other locality. Haven't we an abundance of faith in our own egotism and stupidity?

Don't we believe that money is the root of all evil, and are we not gathering together all of the evil we can possibly lay our hands on? Don't we build fine churches and go to them every Sunday in our fine limousines, no Fords need apply, and spend about two hours singing hymns? Don't we print millions of Bibles and send them to all parts of the world? Don't we organize great missionary societies and send missionaries to all parts of the earth to convert the heathen?

Have not we here in the United States of America an abiding faith in commercialism, when we continue in business and in partnership with the rum traffic? Don't we receive immense sums of money from the licenses we grant for the manufacture and sale of the liquid damnation which destroys the health and lives of our people, creates poverty, breeds crime and disease, and entails misery and destitution upon women and children? Thirty pieces of blood money.

Don't we legalize, license, and receive large sums of money for the sale and use of that filthy weed, tobacco, the deadly nicotine of which makes idiots and imbeciles of the children, unfits young men for service in the army and navy, or any important position of trust? More tainted blood money!

Did we not in California two years ago, show forth our faith and religion when we came so near voting a dry amendment into our own state constitution, and at the same time did we not, in Los Angeles county, cast over 220,000 votes at the general election in 1914 and out of this number did we not cast a little over 9000 of these votes for national prohibition; and did we not poll the balance, or about 210,000 of these votes to perpetuate the rum traffic in the balance of the country? Sure thing.

When the guests arrived they were given picture puzzles, which when completed announced the engagement of Miss Green and Mr. Connor. The table and other decorations were in pink and white, and the party was a most enjoyable one in every way.

OPINIONS AND CONVICTIONS

There is a wide difference between these. One may part easily with a lightly formed opinion involving no principle, with a momentary decision or a swift conclusion unwarranted by facts. But a conviction is wrought with the very being and does not yield without a wrench.

"I think" is one thing, "I know" is another. The very word "conviction" is rooted in "to conquer," and the thing meant, therefore, asserts itself bravely against opposition.

Convictions are not always comfortable. They are stimulating, not soothing; they clamor for utterance and urge to effort. They do not bring ease, but they are essential to victory. How many a good cause would suffer, if strong convictions of right did not compel honest souls to action!

CUBA'S LUMBER IMPORTS

Cuba imports annually about 600,000,000 feet of lumber. This consists, for the most part, of pine, spruce and fir, and is imported in the form of inch boards, running from six to twelve inches in width; planks two and three inches thick and of various widths. The greater part of this lumber comes from the United States, principally from the Gulf of Mexico ports, but Canada supplies a large quantity.

"I LIVE HERE"

A garden, a perfect mosaic, deep green 'gainst the blackest of loam, Spread out near a little log cabin—obscure, but immaculate home! I paused to admire—who could help it?—the weedless expanse near the door, Where, pleased with my pleased inspection, stood a "mammy" of years that are yore.

"A beautiful garden," I ventured. She cupped a brown hand to her ear.

"Fine garden!" I shouted. "Oh, sholy! It ought to be fine—I live here!"

I went on my way with a sermon as great as I ever had heard.

The highest-paid preacher existent could never have added a word.

Were every human who cumbers the tiniest spot of the earth To see that the place he inhabits—the work brain or fingers give birth—

Stood perfect as e'er he could make it—dear God, what a different sphere!

Let's borrow our motto from "mammy": "It ought to be fine—I live here!"
—Strickland Gillian in Ladies Home Journal.

OUR TRADE WITH JAPAN

Some idea of the amount of goods imported from Japan may be gained from the following figures:

A glance at Japan's exports to the United States, from official figures, affords some indication of this purpose. Whereas the total imports from Japan in 1912 amounted to about $80,000,000 in value and less than $100,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1915, they were nearly $150,000,000 for the year ending last June 30, and the activity appears on the increase since June.

Misrepresentation

The advertising of cut rate undertakers, and those "independent of the trust" (whatever that means) is misleading to the public. They furnish nothing more than does this firm at the same price.
